FORE Medical Education at Baylor Scott & White Health

Over the last century, North Texans have relied on our healthcare heroes to provide care to all. As the nation faces a shortage of caregivers, together we have the opportunity to demonstrate our gratitude and commitment to training the next generation of medical professionals. Philanthropic support of medical education initiatives is not only an investment in your future health but in the future health of your family and community.

LOCAL IMPACT.

Following the completion of their training, 20% of our residents and fellows have joined our North Texas medical staff. An additional 15 percent have stayed in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, making a positive impact on the North Texas community.

COLLABORATION.

Over the next few years, BSWH will focus on expanding its 40-year collaboration with Texas A&M Health to continue providing an exceptional learning environment for additional caregivers in the future, building upon the more than 200 medical students who train at BSWH facilities today.

The graduate medical education program at Baylor University Medical Center trains more than 280

residents

in more than 35

specialties each year.

More than

$3.6 Million

has been raised for medical education since the first tournament.
