

In 1903, retired businessman Col. C.C. Slaughter donated a historic gift to create a new hospital in Dallas. That seed of generosity eventually became Baylor University Medical Center, which is now a part of Baylor Scott & White Health – the largest not-for-profit health care system in Texas.

In honor of that fortuitous year that did so much to shape health care in Texas, Baylor Scott & White Dallas Foundation's donor society for annual givers of $2,500 or more is named 1903®.

This prestigious program is the Foundation's way of expressing appreciation for the continual support that has been provided to our health care system.
